

Tech Enables Holocaust Survivors to Engage in Conversations Beyond the Grave

Last Updated:
February 19, 2019
10:09 PM
Elizabeth Lee

Share

f
X
📄
✉️

1:38 / 2:00

Download

The life history of Holocaust survivors is being kept alive in a very real and personal way with the help of technology. Imagine speaking to a video image of a genocide survivor and getting answers back as if you're having a conversation with the real person. That is now possible with a project called Dimensions in Testimony developed by the University of Southern California Shoah Foundation. VOA's Elizabeth Lee has the details on how it works.

- ▶ SEE TV PROGRAMS >
- 🔊 SEE RADIO PROGRAMS >

UNITED STATES <ul style="list-style-type: none"> US News Immigration All About America Silicon Valley & Technology 	WORLD <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Africa The Americas East Asia Pacific Europe Middle East South & Central Asia 	FOLLOW US  f X ▶ 📷 📡 📍
--	--	--

SECTIONS

VOA Programs	Refugees	Economy & Business	VOA Connect
Special projects	VOA News on Iran	Health	52 Documentary
Day in Photos	VOA News on China	Extremism Watch	Videos
Press Freedom	Arts & Culture	Student Union

MORE FROM VOA

VOAAfrica.com Programs	Polygraph.info	Satellite schedule
VOA Learning English	Editorials

ABOUT THIS SITE

Terms of Use & Privacy Notice	Get VOA+	Contact VOA	Usage Requests
About VOA	VOA Around the World	Media Relations	VOA Pronunciation Guide